3. Rights to information pursuant to § 131 para. 1 German Stock Corporation Act

Each shareholder will upon request be provided with information at the General Shareholders' Meeting by the executive board regarding the company's affairs, to the extent that such information is necessary to permit a proper evaluation of an item on the agenda. The duty to provide information also extends to the company's legal and business relations with any affiliates. If a company makes use of the exemptions specified in § 266 para. 1 sentence 3, § 276 or § 288 German Commercial Code (Handelsgesetzbuch), each shareholder may request to be shown, at the General Shareholders' Meeting pertaining to those financial statements, the financial statements in the form they would have taken had these exemptions not been applied. In case of a parent company (§ 290 para. 1, 2 German Commercial Code) the executive board's duty to provide information at the General Shareholders' Meeting at which the consolidated financial statements and the group management report are presented extends to the situation of the group and the entities included in the consolidated financial statements.

The executive board may refuse to provide information

1. if, applying prudent business judgment, providing the information is likely to cause a not inconsiderable disadvantage to the company or an affiliate,
2. if it relates to the tax base or the amount of individual taxes,
3. on the difference between the value at which assets are disclosed in the balance sheet and any higher value of these assets, unless the General Shareholders' Meeting is scheduled to ratify the financial statements,
4. on the accounting policies used if the statements on these policies contained in the notes to the financial statements are adequate to give a true and fair view of the net assets, financial position and results of operations of the company in accordance with § 264 para. 2 German Commercial Code; this will not apply if the General Shareholders' Meeting is scheduled to ratify the financial statements,
5. if provision of the information would render the executive board liable to prosecution,
6. if the information is made continually available on the company's website for at least seven days prior to the General Shareholders' Meeting and at the General Shareholders' Meeting.

The provision of information may not be refused to any other reason.

If information has been provided to a shareholder in his/her capacity as shareholder other than at a General Shareholders' Meeting, such information must be made available, upon request, to every other shareholder at the General Shareholders' Meeting even if such information is not necessary to permit a proper evaluation of the relevant item on the agenda. In such cases, the executive board may not refuse to provide information pursuant to aforementioned Nos. 1 through 4.

If a shareholder is denied information, such shareholder may request the enquiry and the reason for which the information was denied to be included in the minutes of the meeting.
